I wish to object on several grounds, whilst I have no objection to the people involved, I feel we should look after the needs of our own first, through charity work I know there are over 80 homeless women in Derby, many vulnerable. Plus there are homeless service men, they have fought for us. Dont they deserve the luxury of Laverstoke Court? If you put in this as a proposal I would wholeheartedly support. Multicultural desperate asylum seekers is a recipe for disaster. There are going to be conflicts amongst themselves, fighting, language barriers, misunderstandings. By nature they congregate in large numbers, they will be bored because of nothing to do. Its a known fact that pick pocketing and petty crime will increase, hoards of children unable to be schooled and a constant turnaround of people in the area. I have grandchildren in the area and I am worried on the safety effect on them. The local resources will be even more over stretched. Have you seen A & E recently? This area is too built up for this influx of people. Somewhere less crowded which will not impact on the local community is needed. If this goes ahead, I am sure within a few months of it becoming operational we will be reading about it, nationally, and saying we told you so.
